Globe Trotting

by Travel Editor Emma Harrison

We all love to globetrot but don't always want to miss out on the finer things in life. When it comes to travel, we don't want to compromise, so where are the most luxurious places to stay in the world and why should you stay there? Emma Harrison rounds-up where you can rest your head (in luxury) this autumn.

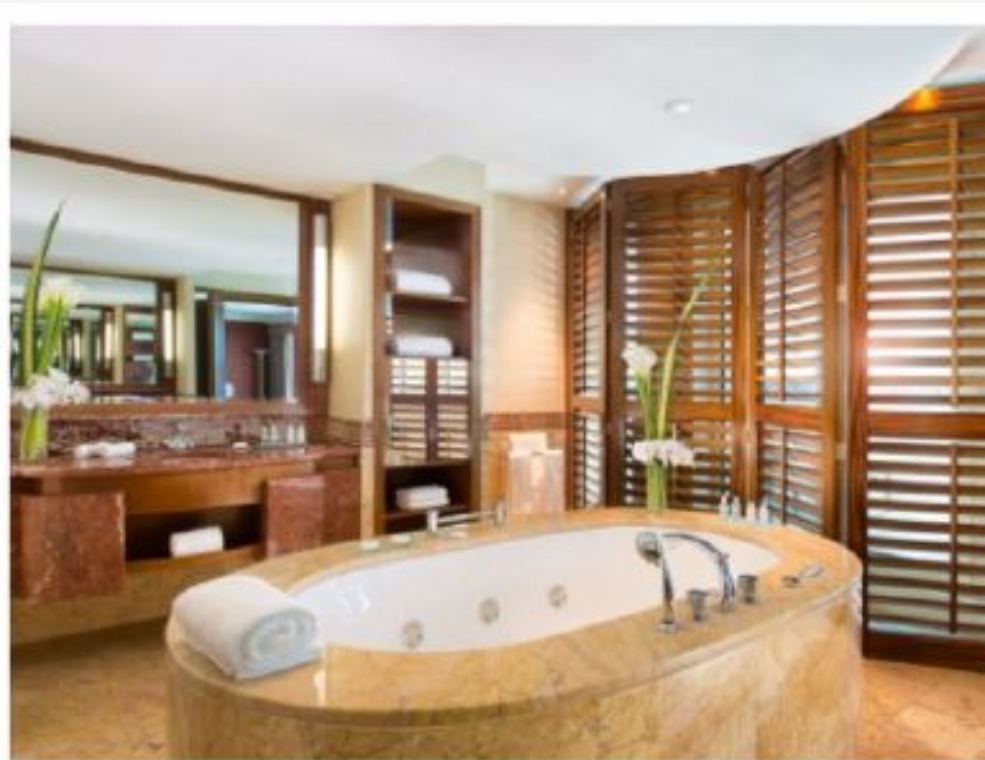

Jardin des Douars, Essaouira

Taking inspiration from the rammed earth Kasbahs of the High Atlas, the Jardin des Douars which is located close to Essaouira sits upon a ridge-top that overlooks the Ksob river. Whilst the look is undoubtedly rustic-chic, there is still a sense of luxury thanks to the spa and the two heated pools. The hotel looks like a fusion of a genteel country manor fused with a grand castle, lavishly decorated with glowing candles and soft deep pile rugs. This is ideal for those who are looking for a real retreat and don't mind being surrounded by the peace and tranquility of the surrounding olive trees and terracotta hills.

Hotel President Wilson, Geneva

Situated on the shores of Lake Geneva and just a few steps from the most beautiful parks and boutiques of the renowned Rue du Rhône, Hotel President Wilson is one of the most contemporary hotels in Geneva, facing the magnificent panorama of the Mont-Blanc. With large bay-windows offering a panoramic view over Lake Geneva, the hotel pool of Geneva city, all 204 Rooms and 22 Suites of the luxury hotel combine comfort and elegance. However, the acclaimed Royal Penthouse Suite is truly a sight to behold thanks to its terrace with panoramic view over the lake and the Mont-Blanc, the jacuzzi, spa, Steinway grand piano, the 103-inch Bang & Olufsen and beautiful furnishings. This truly unique suite stands for pure luxury with maximum security, from bulletproof windows, emergency alarm buttons and reinforced safe to a private lift to take guests directly to their majestic living quarters.

Live an exclusive experience at Spa La Mer and its outdoor pool overlooking the lake and succumb to the delicacy of the Michelin starred cuisine from famous Chef Michel Roth.

Why you need to visit

For a chance to stay in the Royal Penthouse Suite, which is known to be the largest suite in Europe and the most expensive suite in the World.
